CHINESE-SOVIET IMPASSE BREWS OVER PRISONERS

Russian Officials Mistrust Cantonese Assurances As To Safety of Captives

FEAR WHITE RUSSIANS MAY SECURE COURIERS

Soviet Advisor's Wife Arrested on Charge of Possessing Military Plans

SHANGHAI, March 11. (P)—A grave situation is brewing between the Chinese government at Peking and Soviet Russia over the seizure of the Soviet vessel, Lenina, a week ago and the arrest of Mme. Borodin, wife of the advisor to the Cantonese government, and three Russian couriers.

Soviet officials clearly mistrust assurances of the Chinese as to the safety of the captives and fear that Mme. Borodin and her fellow prisoners will meet short shrift, should they fall into the hands of white Russians attached to the Northern army.

Accordingly, the Soviet government has sent a second and sterner note to Peking warning that the Soviet government would take extreme measures should mischance befall the Russians.

When the Lenina was seized last Saturday, it was explained she was loaded with propaganda directed against the Northern Chinese cause. Mme. Borodin, wife of Michael Borodin, advisor to the Canton government, was arrested on the charge that she had in her possession military plans of General Chang Tsung-Chang, Shantungese defender of Shanghai.

The three Russians arrested with Mme. Borodin have been identified as M. Sierre, formerly a clerk at the Soviet embassy, Peking, and M. Krill and Griedus, couriers en route to Hankow. There have been reports that they were executed by order of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, but late dispatches indicated they were safe at Tsinan.

By The Associated Press
Fighting which may have a decisive effect on the outcome of the struggle between the northern and southern Chinese is going on behind the scenes in Honan province. Its seriousness is indicated by the arrival of 600 wounded at Peking.

It appears that the long predicted clash has at last occurred between forces allied with Wu Peifu and those of the Manchurian warlord, Chang Tso-Lin, who is driving southward through Honan to attempt to halt the northward advance of the Cantonese.

Chang, known as a master tactician, is reported to be planning a flank attack in Honan, meanwhile rushing 60,000 reinforcements southward to carry on his main advance toward Hankow. Cantonese forces are entrenched on the southern Honan border to block the way to Hankow.

Most of the five drivers and guards of the two cars and armored trucks carrying the money, and an escorting car, were knocked unconscious by the blast but one of them, retaining his senses, had a pistol held at his head by one of the robbers until the others had gathered up the money. All the custodians of the payroll were injured, one seriously.

All officers in western Pennsylvania tonight sought the robbers who were reported to have made their escape in two automobiles.

Baptists Refuse To Answer Charge Against John D.

CHICAGO, March 11. (P)—Belief that the fundamentalist-modernist controversy in the Baptist church was practically dead was expressed here today by most members of the executive committee of the Northern Baptist convention, and 75 Baptist ministers from the larger cities within the Northern Baptist territory. They are meeting here to make plans for the annual meeting in Chicago May 31 to June 5.

Because of the feeling that the controversy is a dead issue, an attitude of silence was adopted as the only answer to the charges made in New York City yesterday by the Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, of Toronto, president of the Baptist Union of North America, that the Northern Baptist convention is "seeking to tamper with the basic doctrines of the church," under the "Rockefeller liberal hierarchy," and that John D. Rockefeller Jr. was attempting to make the Northern Baptist convention the "religious department of the Standard Oil company."

Physicians at General Hospital today said there was a strong possibility of Santamaria's complete recovery, despite the fact that the bullet may never be removed. Physicians were dubious about attempting to remove it.

SUNKEN LINER MAY BOTTLE UP NEW YORK PORT

Morgan Liner El Sol Goes To Bottom After Collision Near Statue of Liberty

NEW YORK, March 11. (P)—The light that liberty sheds on the world was not bright enough today to dispel a fog that shrouded New York bay and two freighters collided head on under the harbor's famous statue, one of them sinking and becoming a menace to navigation in the channel, one of the busiest shipping lanes in all the world.

Only one man was lost, John Brown, a ship's carpenter on the Southern Pacific freighter El Sol, the ship that sank. All other members of the crew of 44 were saved. The other craft in the collision, the American Diamond line freighter Sac City, was badly damaged but did not sink and none of the crew was injured.

The two freighters were nosing through a heavy fog off Staten Island and about half a mile from the Statue of Liberty when they struck. Visibility was almost entirely destroyed by the low hanging banks of fog and apparently even the sound of sirens could not be heard until it was too late.

The collision took a great hole in the bow of the Sac City but it was able to keep afloat and anchored off Greenville, L. I. El Sol, however, a craft of more than 3,000 net tonnage, was more seriously damaged and sank almost before the crew could take to the water.

The channel at the point, which is directly in the main lane for ocean liners, is about sixty feet deep and only the tips of El Sol's spars showed after she sank. The position is about half way between Bedloe's Island, on which the Statue of Liberty is situated and Governor's Island, the army headquarters for the second corps area.

When the first report of the accident was received all efforts were turned to the rescue of life. Police boats, fire boats, a revenue cutter and all nearby small craft shoved through the fog to the scene as speedily as they dared.

The Morgan line tug El Alamo was the first on the scene and took aboard El Sol's crew. After the rescue of the crew was accomplished attention was turned to the sunken freighter to see how serious a menace to navigation it was, the channel at this point is something like the neck of a bottle and it was feared that El Sol, in sinking, had assumed the position of a cork in the bottle.

A coast guard survey was begun to determine the exact situation as soon as possible. Shipping men said that if it was found that El Sol had sunk in the exact middle of the channel ocean lines would be unable either to enter or leave the harbor until it was removed.

The Cunard Line Benarosa and the Lloyd Sabaudo liner Conte Biancamano are scheduled to sail late tonight.

TAX REMISSION BILL UPBRAIDED

Tom Deberry of Bogata Assails Dallas-Ft. Worth Reclamation Proposal as Unfair

AUSTIN, March 11. (P)—Stiff opposition today beset the path of the Stuart Senate bill to remit state taxes for 25 years to a Trinity river flood control district involving Tarrant, Dallas, and Wise counties.

The bill is one of two affecting the district. It would give the district about $5,000,000 State taxes from Tarrant county, which is to put up $7,000,000.

The legislature recently was the guests of Dallas and Ft. Worth on a special train from here and shown the lands to be reclaimed. Attorney General Claude Pollard has ruled, however, that the legislature cannot constitutionally remit the taxes sought. Representatives Beck and Kemble of Ft. Worth presented the project this morning as one that the State should have a share in and one that would reclaim 120,000 acres of land subject to floods.

They argued that it would be an investment for the State, increasing adjacent property tax valuations.

Deberry Attacks

Representative Tom Deberry bitterly attacked the bill and tax remission in general in a speech of nearly 20 minutes. He quoted that portion of the constitution that says there shall be no tax remission except in cases of "great public calamity."

"The wildest stretch of imagination can not put this proposition under the calamity head," Deberry declared.

He charged the Tarrant county delegation with unfairness in their manner of drawing up and submitting other bills having nothing to do with the flood control bill, and later was asked by Representative Morse of Houston to prove his statements or retract them.

Noon recess came about that time, however, and the matter was left hanging.

Mentioning other bills from Ft. Worth and Dallas seeking right to levy additional taxes for public improvements, Deberry sarcastically referred to them as "poor, calamity stricken counties."

Disclaiming statements of Representative Kemble that Ft. Worth has a 75 cent tax rate, Deberry said that "probably $100,000,000 cash is lying in the banks there untaxed."

"Look at Cameron and Hidalgo counties," he said, "they are garden spots now by your favor in remitting their taxes for 25 years."

He related how the legislature first voted against that remission, then visited the scene of the flood control project, and came back and voted the remission in reconsideration.

Attacks Love

"Talk about lobbyists," Deberry said, "how about that 15 coach pullman train Dallas and Ft. Worth sent down here to take the legislature up to the Trinity river and show it the light?"

"And it is the gentleman from Dallas, Mr. Love, who wants the white, pitiless light of publicity put on lobbying activities."

"Do you think it is just," Representative Kemble asked, "for Tarrant county to pay all of the cost of damming the Trinity river so that property all down its course will be protected?"

Admits Killing Two Babies as Well as His Wife

CHARLESTON, Mo., March 11. (P)—Lang Hagan, former Kentucky moonshiner, and admitted slayer of his wife, Mary, today confessed to Sheriff J. O. King that he also killed his two infant children by crushing their skulls with his hands when they were only a few days old.

Without the bravado that had characterized his confession two days ago that he killed his wife with a rock at his home near Bardonia, Ky., two years ago, Hagan falteringly admitted killing the babies, but only after being subjected to a severe grilling.

"I killed them, but I don't know why I did it," he cried, as Sheriff King revealed to him that authorities in Kentucky planned to exhume the infants' bodies. "That's all I'll say. I killed them and I'm prepared to pay the penalty."

Hagan would give no other answer to the officer's repeated questions as to why he committed the murder. He appeared much nearer a breakdown than he has since his sensational confession Tuesday when without questioning, he said he murdered his wife, buried her body in a grave under the house, and then fired the structure.

REFERENDUM ON MEASURE TO BE HELD IN AUGUST

Provides for Leaving Ad Valorem Taxes in Hands of Texas Counties

REGARD RESOLUTION AS IMPORTANT LEGISLATION

Would Make Suitable Revision of Law Based on Report of Tax Surveys

AUSTIN, March 11. (P)—Governor Dan Moody late today signed the Stevenson tax reform resolution which he recommended to both branches of the legislature as means to equalize tax burdens of the state.

The house concurred today in senate amendments to the resolution which called for a popular referendum on the question the first Saturday in August.

Addressing the senate yesterday, Moody explained that the resolution seeks legislative power to make a division of the state's taxable resources so that the state government may be supported almost wholly by intangible taxes, leaving the ad valorem tax to the counties. Efforts will be made to provide a greater source of income from corporate interests.

The resolution is regarded as one of the most important pieces of legislation in this session. If voted by the people, it will authorize suitable tax reform laws to be based on the report of a tax survey committee of 15, authorized in another resolution adopted by both houses some weeks ago.

TOKYO EVIDENCES DESIRE FOR FIVE POWER SESSION

Emphasizes Desirability of Not Regarding French-Italian Refusals as Final

WASHINGTON, March 11. (P)—The three-power conference at Geneva on naval armament limitation became assured today by acceptance of Japan of the American informal proposal. The British acceptance was received yesterday.

Japanese acceptance is unconditional. It was accompanied, however, by a direct gesture from Tokyo seeking to renew overtures to France and Italy to participate in the five-power discussion originally projected by President Coolidge.

Japanese emphasis on the desirability of not accepting the French and Italian refusals as final brought to the surface again evidences of the strong hope entertained in Washington that actually the Geneva conferences will have a five-power significance.

Work Latest Plan to Sell New York
to Indian Tribes

MONTREAL, March 11. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Orrin J. Kellogg of Oneida, Wis., were arraigned for preliminary hearing today on charges of virtually selling New York state to Indians of the six nations—all for a slight down payment and small monthly instalments.

The land which the braves were told was rightfully theirs and could be regained for them from the United States government, was estimated to be worth six hundred billion dollars, the Indians were led to believe.

The Kelloggs were accused of having obtained "subscriptions" to effect the transfer of New York to the Indians from members of the six nations all over Canada and the United States.

Chief Ovide Soule of the Lorette reservation at Quebec, identified documents seized by police. He acknowledged that he had collected about $5,000 to aid the plan. He said he had been visited by the defendants on various occasions.

RAINS REDUCING
ACREAGE IN FEED

County Agent Says Cessation of Rains Necessary to Material
Cotton Reduction

Carl Tanner, county agent, said yesterday that he is of the opinion that unless the excessive rains cease the farmers of the county will be prevented from planting as much feed crops as they had expected and will necessarily have to put this acreage in cotton. There seems, he said, to be a general desire on the part of the farmers to plant more feedstuffs this year and to reduce cotton acreage.

Owing to the heavy rain throughout this year so far, it has been practically impossible for the majority of the farmers to work their land. There has been, however, a large amount of acreage put in feeds and Mr. Tanner is of the opinion that there will be a reduction in the cotton acreage, if weather conditions are favorable.

Mr. Tanner believes that a greater amount of land than usual will be idle, because of an apparent shortage of farm labor. Some farmers will not put out crops owing to financial difficulties, he said.

TREATY MADE WITH MEXICO CONTINUED

See In Continuation Smuggling Pact Sign Of Stable Mexican-American Relation

WASHINGTON, March 11. (AP)—One sign of stability in Mexican-American relations, for the present at least, is seen here in the fact that no official step has been taken toward termination of the smuggling treaty signed a year ago by the two countries to regulate the trans-border shipment of arms, liquor and other commodities.

The new treaty became effective on March 23, 1926, and was for one year. It provided, however, it should continue in force after the year expired, provided neither side asked for cancellation. A thirty-day notice from either government would terminate it.

Under its terms notice of arms shipments or shipments of any other commodities embargoed by Mexico would have to be given the Mexican government even if the American embargo on exportation of arms to Mexico were lifted. State department officials declined to say today whether there had been any recent discussion of the smuggling treaty but they did say no notices of termination had been given.

That lifting of the arms embargo has been among the possibilities considered here has never been disguised by officials although they have refused to predict what would be done.

Believed Obregon Will Be Candidate

MEXICO CITY, March 11. (AP)—That former President Obregon will be a candidate in the 1928 presidential elections now is considered a foregone conclusion in political circles. A reported conversation between General Obregon and Rodolfo Gaona, retired bull fighting idol of Mexico, was being commented on today by political leaders as further proof that the ex-president has about made up his mind to accept the nomination.

Meeting the ex-mayor on the streets, Obregon is reported to have asked him whether he intended to return to the bull ring. Obtaining a flat denial, Obregon said:

"Your will power must be greater than mine, because I have been trapped again."

Ministers Decry New Lewis Novel

KANSAS CITY, March 11. (AP)—Kansas City ministers generally expressed disappointment on reading Sinclair Lewis' latest novel, "Elmer Gantry," which just appeared. The book is described as a satire on commercial religion. Much of the material was gathered here.

"Gantry" is portrayed as a country youth who attended a theological seminary where he appeared in the role of a hypocrite, thief, liar and seducer. After being expelled he led a nomad life, but finally sought to atone for his sins through the church.

The Rev. I. M. Hargett, pastor of the Grand Avenue Methodist temple here, described the novel as "overdrawn and preposterous."

"Lewis doesn't know what we preachers are working for in our churches," Dr. Hargett declared. "They say I'm 'Elmer Gantry.' I'm not offended personally. I don't think the book amounts to enough for that."

The Rev. William L. Stidger, of the Linwood Boulevard Methodist Episcopal church, who introduced Mr. Lewis to many ministers here, said he was disappointed because the book failed to cover ministerial problems.

Dr. Hargett found glimpses of some Kansas City ministers in the book, but was sure the pastors portrayed were not typical of local clergymen.

'Game Bill Will Prove Fight At Anytime' Deberry

AUSTIN, March 11. (AP)—It is about like Rep. Tom Deberry of Bogata, Red River county, says. "Whenever the house runs out of something to fight over, all it has to do is take up some kind of a game bill," Deberry observed, apropos of recent jousts in the lower branch of the Fortieth legislature.

Nearly every game bill brought this session has provoked some sort of a row, especially if it involved hunting license or restrictions on size and age of game.

Deberry thinks the explanation is that a game bill touches the instinctive personal interest of more house members than anything else they usually consider. "Nearly everybody hunts some time during the year, he pointed out."

The hardest fight of the session resulted during consideration of a bill by Rep. Wells of Edna to limit deer killing to bucks with six-prong antlers. Before the measure was sent to the senate with amendments cutting out the sixprong feature, sarcastic remarks were flung about the house dealing with the advisability of having bucks stop and let the hunter count the prongs.

Someone suggested that on a properly equipped hunting trip nimrods might minister to thirst in a manner that might make them see more buck prongs than nature had produced.

The measure is pending in the senate.

THE TAX REMISSION EVIL

THE opinion of Attorney General Claude Pollard denying that the legislature has power to remit state taxes to counties in some instances, while subject to controversy that may end in the courts, will be welcomed by many of those who wish to see use of this privilege of the legislature restrained to times of public emergency. The entire legislature was not junketed to Galveston after the 1900 storm to determine the need for remission of taxes. Nor was that body brought here at the expense of Paris citizens when it graciously remitted taxes to our people after the most disastrous fire that ever visited a city of this size in Texas.

The spontaneous acquiescence of the legislature and the people of Texas in the justification of this move was prima facie proof of the need.
Under present conditions in Texas, with the state still almost "land-poor" with it impossible to provide an adequate amount of funds for rural school aid, for dormitories and other needed equipment at our universities and colleges, and for a host of other things that the legislature can not provide for because the state tax funds are not increasing fast enough, nothing short of emergency should justify remission of state taxes.
Hidalgo county got its taxes remitted several years by the 39th legislature after other Rio Grande Valley counties had succeeded in getting similar aid. A terrific fight was launched against it, the prediction being freely made that further remission would encourage new attempts in this direction. The prediction was fulfilled in the request for Dallas, Tarrant, McLennan, Tyler county and others to obtain remission of taxes for reclamation work. It might be an economically sound investment for the state, in encouraging development of taxable property but the state can not afford it now. There are appropriations that should be made in this state to better safeguard actual human life. Remissions, now, to rich sections of the state are unfair to less fortunate regions, who are some instances have suffered unusual reverses.

A DRAMATIC CAREER

W. E. WOODWARD, one of the biographers who wrote a new life of Washington during the past year, is going to tackle U. S. Grant next.

"Grant," says Woodward, "was one of the most dramatic of our heroes. At the age of 38 he was an obscure and beaten man, sitting silently in a country store. His opportunities were all apparently behind him.

"Who would have dreamed, at the beginning of the Civil War, that this scoldy, discouraged failure was to become leader of the Union Armies and president for two terms?"

We don't know whether Woodward is going to make Grant's biography "human" in the way he tried to make that of Washington. But we agree with him that he has an unusually interesting subject.

A STATUE FOR A HEROINE

A GROUP of highly interesting bits of sculpture has been on display in New York recently. It is made up of pieces offered in competition for a prize for the best portrayal of "The Pioneer Woman."

Among the figures submitted, as might be expected, are many diverse conceptions. One artist shows the pioneer woman as a lithe, sinewy girl in flowing draperies; another as a bent, haggard old woman, worn out by toil; another as a buxom, motherly sort of goddess, serene and un-troubled.

We don't know which piece the judges will select. Probably, no matter which statue is selected, a lot of people will criticize it. Yet it is a good thing that the competition is being held; it serves to remind us of the debt that we owe to the pioneer women of America.

The pioneer woman has been neglected in our historical. Hers is the epic that has been but poorly written, the tragedy that too often goes unsung.

We have waxed eloquent about the bearded, two-fisted men who crossed the great plains in the gold rush of '49; about the brawny old adventurers who blazed the trail to Oregon and the northwest; about the gaunt woodsmen who opened up Kentucky and the rich middle west in the days when Washington still lived. All of these men have been given their due.

But when have we paused to consider that the American frontier was never a womanless frontier?

The men whose axes cleared away the forests of Indiana and Ohio were doughty heroes, surely. But they had wives; and these wives lived in bare cabins, bore and reared big families, cultivated gardens, made clothes and endured hunger, pain and danger without limit. The long trek across the plains was heroic and magnificent, of course; but there were women in those covered wagons as well as men, sharing the difficulties in even greater measure.

The pioneer woman had all the worst of it, as a matter of fact. The thrills and savage joys of the adventure were not for her; plain drudgery, is difficult to understand.

dreariness and a closely-limited horizon were her lot. She gave birth to her children in a rude hut, usually without any medical attention; she got up and resumed her heavy daily duties a few days later, uncomplaining and persevering.

She is not the romantic, heroic figure that the male pioneer is. There is little of romance about a woman grown old and haggard at 35, with a bent back and stringy gray hair and a deep-lined, hopeless face. Yet she deserves the high tribute of a nation, none the less.

She, as much as the tall rifleman in buckskin leggings and broad-brimmed hat, gave us our west. If a prize statue will help remind us of that fact it will be well.

RULING THE AIR, TOO

JUST where is the dominion of the United States government going to end, anyhow—on the moon?

The government first left the ground when it established a weather bureau and a meteorological service. Then it put in a department of aeronautics.
Now it has set up a federal radio board.

Go as high as you like, the rules and regulations of the United States government will still follow you.

Perhaps we should call our president by a new title—"Prince of the Powers of the Air."

Can't somebody declare Senator Hefflin a neutral zone?

WHAT OTHERS SAY

HIGHWAYS AND TRAVEL

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat:

THE report of the Department of the Interior on federal aid to highways and the attendance at national parks reveals the value of good roads in determining both the routes and the destinations of the recreationists. It reveals that because of the differing road policies of Missouri and Iowa, there has been the past year a falling off of motor travel in Iowa and an increase in Missouri. The completion of trunk paved routes clear across this state has drawn this way thousands of motorists who might otherwise have traversed Iowa. The fact that good road routes across that State are interrupted by stretches of bad roads militates against tourist travel there.
We had that condition also in this state, and we are not entirely rid of it yet, but we have learned the value of continuous trunk lines and are now beginning to reap the benefit of their construction. That benefit will enlarge as our system of paved roads expands.

It would seem unnecessary after the experience we already have had to dwell upon the value to the state of purely through-bound tourist travel. A motor party that only spends a single day in the state, that would not have been spent here if paved roads did not exist, leaves here at least one day's cost of travel. When that is multiplied by thousands it amounts to a considerable sum of purely outside money put into local circulation for the stimulation of business. This is the least benefit derived.

Paved roads give access to the natural beauties and attractions in which Missouri is so rich.
They have a tendency to convert the mere tourist into the recreationist and prolong his stay and increase his expenditures. This gives a word-of-mouth and printed narrative advertising to both the beauties and the resources of the state. The effect of this upon development of industries, increase in population and rise in the value of property may easily be seen. All this is in addition to the purely local value of the roads, economically and socially.

Do Not Begrudge
Your Physician Diversion

By Olive Roberts Barton

EXCEPT in cases where people are working during the day, or, of course, when serious or sudden illness demands his attention, should we not try to give the doctor his chance to dance, or dine, or make merry as he chooses in the evening hours when all men should have rest and recreation?

A doctor's work is hard. The responsibility of human life is a heavy one. It requires not only from eight to ten years of preparation before he begins to practice, but constant study and research afterwards to keep up with the advance of science and medicine.

This, in comparison with the treatment of his patients, his loss of sleep and irregularity of means, will in time undermine his health. As far as possible he should have his evenings.

Illness is usually more acute at night. Our nerves go back on us. Things that can be borne well through the day look unusually black and unbearable at night. We want the doctor. It's a comfort to hear him say we'll be all right.

It is not kind to censure a doctor who takes a few hours of recreation "when his patients might be dying."

A young doctor was called in to attend a girl with a fatal illness. He was in love with the girl and he watched with agony and failure his attempts to cure her. She was at the point of death, when he remembered reading of a similar case in the medical journals—a case in a Vienna hospital that had been cured by resorting to a rather extreme administration of a certain drug.
Two other doctors had been called in previously in consultation. They approved of his treatment, said that nothing more could be done and departed. He knew there was no hope of their co-operation now in what he was going to attempt. But it was the only chance left.

The drug was to be administered in three doses two hours apart. He gave the first dose, walked the floor and found his nerve going. He gave a few directions to the nurse, said he would be back in an hour, and went out for a walk.

He went into a hotel for some cigars, met his cousin and danced two dances to relax his nerves and brace him for the battle that was to be his that night. The news reached the girl's house before he did. He found the door barred. His colleagues were in charge.

Why people should criticize the doctor, who seeks recreation by dancing, or in any other way, is difficult to understand.

OUT OUR WAY

WASHINGTON
LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, March 14.—

John Philip Hill has gone away.
He made the house some better.
He had been allowed to stay.
He might have done some better in making the house some better.

In case his career here is over, one may at least put some such humble epitaph on Hill's tombstone.

Barely voted out of congress when he sought election to the senate last November Congressman Hill has left Washington with an unequal record of spectacular work for the cause of the west.

When he came six years ago, the dis-hards had virtually given up trying to make any dent in the solid dry phalanx in the house.

On his first day in congress, Hill promptly introduced a bill to repeal the Volstead act.

In that congress, the sixty-seventh, he organized the wet bloc, consisting of representatives favoring modification of the Volstead act. Hill was made chairman of this committee and functioned in that position during the sixty-seventh, sixty-eighth and sixty-ninth congresses.

Today the committee has 63 members. The optimistic Hill even believes modification has an "excellent chance" next year.

"This committee will be committed of 80 in the next house," Hill said as he started packing up and had turned over the affairs of the valiant little group to his successor.

"We have that many definite promises of membership."

NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 11.—It takes all kinds of children to make up the juvenile population of a city the size of New York.

Consider the case of Young Graham Smith, aged three, "bad man" of 82d street.

Graham's mother works as a housekeeper in the home of well to do family. Her own home is modest, and while she is away she leaves her three-year-old son in the care of his two older brothers, Donald, 11, and William, 12.

When she leaves it is ordinarily the custom for the three brothers to snuggle back in bed—to have a good long nap. Graham isn't supposed to get up until the rest do; for, as Don says, "he is as tough as they make 'em."

But the other morning a yearning for adventure seized the three-year-old. So he wriggled quietly out of bed and planned an outing.
First he went to the kitchen, where he made a most unholly mess in a valiant but futile effort to make griddle cakes and coffee.
Then he sought to clothe himself for the day.

Dressing was something of a task and he couldn't quite manage it. He got his underwear and shoes on, all right, but found he couldn't quite negotiate the buttons on his blue pants and sweater, usually managed by one of his brothers.
But he was determined on adventure; so, unlocking the door, he sailed forth into the street, garbed in his underwear and carrying the rest of his clothes over his arm.
His brothers slept on, peacefully.

After making an effort to un-pile a big mound of snow that the street cleaning department had carefully piled at the curb, Graham headed for Second avenue and the big doings. He was progressing famously when he met a big policeman, who decided something must be wrong.

Off to the station house went Graham, in the arms of the cop—whom incidentally, he bluffed lustily in the eye for his pains.

"There will be at least a hundred more congressmen who will vote for a bill to allow each state to determine what alcoholic content in beverages is intoxicating."

"In the sixty-seventh congress there were 102 members who actually voted wet on a test vote."
"In the sixty-eighth congress, if modification had been brought up, there would have been more than 170 votes for it."

"In the seventieth congress, I estimate that 184 votes will favor modification and I believe there is a fine chance to change the Volstead act for the better."

"Many of the New York and Pennsylvania people have seen the light in the last year and our modification is growing so rapidly in each succeeding congress that modification is absolutely inevitable."

It was Hill, of course, who made it possible for one to make wine in his home for domestic purposes and get away with it unless a jury should decide that this particular wine was intoxicating.

His famous "cider party" at his home in Baltimore, to which he invited everyone, including probi-tion agents, will go down in Maryland's history.

It was his modification committee which effected the 275 beer bill hearings, which led in turn to the senate prohibition hearings. At both of these hearings the subject of prohibition and its enforcement was given a thorough airing in public for the first time.

"We haven't passed any of our modification measures during this period," Hill concluded, "but we stopped the dry—they haven't got anything through either."

NEW YORK

Graham remained at the station for several hours, until his frantic brothers, scouring the neighborhood for him, looked in.
They found him decked out in a policeman's hat, brandishing a bully and having a high old time.
The officers, it should be added, had completed the job of dressing him.

Back home went Graham. His brief hour of liberty was ended.
Like a great many other people, he had been lured away from home by the glitter and dazzle of
New York.

And, like some of the others, he had wound up in a police station and had been taken home in disgrace.

GILBERT SWAN.

The Home Garden

Helps Reduce the High Cost of Living

Vegetables Keep Best In Garden

The garden is a better place to keep vegetables fresh than the refrigerator. The economy of a garden is seldom considered from this viewpoint but it is an important one. There is no waste from storage. The vegetables are kept at their best quality while growing. They may get over-matured if left too long in the soil but they keep where they grow and only a quantity sufficient for a meal need be gathered, leaving the rest to remain in tip-top condition of spading up space to plant it.

THE GARDEN IS THE BEST PLACE TO KEEP
VEGETABLES. GATHER ONLY ENOUGH

or another day and another meal.

A garden saves a lot of room in the ice box and provides better quality vegetables than can possibly be gathered from the refrigerator or from the cold storage plant of the grocery. Home-grown vegetables do not suffer as do market supplies from wilt from being left in the sun and they are not passed through hands of whose cleanliness and sanitary condition there is grave suspicion.

Home-grown vegetables are cleanest, of best quality, and a real economy.

Clean spinach for the baby is the incentive for many a garden start. The wilted and sand-laden greens often on sale at the green grocers cannot compare with the fresh, crisp leaves that may be gathered in the back-yard patch from a nickel package of seed plus a little healthy exercise in the way

But proper diet for the baby is no more important than proper diet for the adult and although it is usual to treat a baby with more consideration than a grown-up when it comes to food, there is no good reason for doing so from a strictly hygienic standpoint. Start a vegetable garden this year as a measure of health and economy. If it is no more than a spinach patch it is that much clear gain. Tomatoes may follow the spinach and two staples of the menu are provided for the season.

A study of food distribution costs in New York City made by experts of the Department of Agriculture shows that for every 26 cents paid by the consumer for fruits and vegetables, about 14 cents is the wholesale value and 12 cents is distribution costs.

Chapter 136
Churchill beamed as he stood aside to allow the two sisters to greet each other. When Faith had kissed Cherry twice, her arms holding the little figure tight against her breast, the lawyer thrust out a hand to his lovely little client.

"Well, well, Miss Cherry, you're looking a perfect picture! If all my clients were as pretty as you are, I'd never lose a case."

At the press tables, pencils raced over pads of yellow paper.
Two artists sketched furiously.

Jim Lane, humble, darkly flushed with shame at his conspicuousness, stumbled toward his daughter, mumbling something beneath his breath, then, drawing a trembling hand across his eyes, he sank back into his chair. Cherry fluttered to her seat between her father and Faith.

What she said to Faith was characteristic. "Do I look all right, honey? Gee, I'm scared stiff, but nobody could tell it, could they?
Isn't Churchill the old hypocrite?" I had an awful fight with him last night because I told him I simply wouldn't under any circumstances, no matter how the trial goes against me, let him try to slip in a self-defense plea. Thanks for these stockings, darling. "Aren't the little leather slippers cute?" The shoe store sent over the nicest salesman you ever saw. Tried to flirt with me, the devil! Oh, by the way, I got four more proposals of marriage yesterday. Churchill wants me to give the letters to the papers, but I won't do it. Isn't he a nut on publicity? He'll simply die if they don't run his picture and sketches of him every day.

Oh, that good-looking artist is sketching me now. I hope he doesn't make my nose any more pug than it is."

Faith listened with a slight smile on her lips, slipping in a word now and then, but her eyes were fixed on the door through which Cherry had come. What was keeping Chris Wiley, Cherry's co-defendant?

"Where is Chris, Cherry?" Faith asked at last, in a whisper.
"Oh, hadn't you heard?" Cherry's eyes narrowed and her voice grew cold. "He is sick, or so Churchill says. Chris' own special lawyer, Mr. Penny, is going to ask for a separate trial for Chris, because Churchill won't agree to have my trial adjourned. He feels that he has sympathy for me up to fever heat now, and he doesn't want it to cool during a long adjournment."

"But what is the matter with Chris? The papers haven't mentioned his illness," Faith protested, genuine concern in her voice.

"He was stricken with mastoiditis in the middle of the night, and was rushed to the hospital," Cherry answered carelessly. "He's being operated on this morning."

"After all, Cherry, darling," Faith reminded her gently, "he's your husband. Don't you care—at all?"

"I am sorry he's sick," Cherry answered briefly, but her golden eyes had no pity.

Further conversation between them was interrupted by the court crier announcing the approach of the judge. The clatter of voices, the rustle of papers, was still instantly, to be succeeded by the scraping sound of hundreds of feet as every person in the courtroom rose to pay honor to the majesty of the law, in the person of stern-faced, tight-lipped old Judge Grimsaw, whose tall, heavy body was draped in the black folds of the traditional judge's robes.

The court crier chanted with the fervor of a religious devotee the age-old formula, that fearful spell-weaving "oyez, oyez," which is the prelude to every grim drama at which the blind goddess presides.

GALLEGOS FOUND AND ORDERED TO JACKSONVILLE

Passing of Senior Teen Gives Silent Bill Big Opportunity In Outfield

By Harry Cox

After having materially swelled the receipts of the telegraph companies Manager Earl Snapp finally located the Senior Teen Gallegos. The senior was found at Cheyenne, Okla., and Snapp got into communication with him by wire.

The senior was advised via telegraph to his himself at once, if not sooner, to Jacksonville, Fla., there to back in the Florida sunshine and get into condition to play ball for the city that nestles on the banks of the St. Johns river.

The passing of Gallegos will give "Still Bill" Stellbauer a most excellent chance at a regular berth in the outfield of the revamped Snappers. It was not originally planned to use the "silent one" this season, but it is more than likely that Bill will be out there in the pasture this summer, which fact should be pleasant news to the flingers in Mr. Fisher's tight, if not compact, loop.

Stellbauer can bust that old apple to a fare-thee-well. He has always been able to do that—in any league, and he has played in many Bill may not cover as much ground as he was wont to do, but he will drive many a run over the plate. This ability to hit 'em where they ain't, plus the ability to drive out long hits still makes Stellbauer a mighty valuable piece of baseball. Give a brace to have around.

The baseball committee showed slight signs of renewing their activities yesterday, and will probably get on the job today and finish up with a whirlwind campaign next week. Each succeeding day brings reporting time just that much closer—the time when it is going to take cash and a lot of it, not to mention the guaranteed money that must be in President Fisher's hands before opening day. This amount alone totals $1,500, and must be deposited before the season starts.

It has always been conceded in all of the baseball meetings held in various sections of the country that Paris is ready, and past history backs up this supposition. There has never been the slightest doubt expressed in the various cities about Paris not having the needed money, and this held good when all other cities were considered as doubtful. This is the reputation Paris has abroad, and it is a reputation that must be well maintained.

Just remember that fact today or next week or whenever the soliciting committees call on you. Manager Snapp is banking on that reputation, and although the actual money to finance the club is not in sight, Snapp is going right ahead with his plans.

New York Cotton
NEW YORK, March 11. (P)—The cotton market was quiet again today, and prices fluctuated within a range of 10 or 15 points. NEW ORLEANS, March 11. ALBERT STOKES

NEXT!

Throwing runners out at the plate has become more or less of a lost art. This can be attributed largely to the lively ball that has been in use for several years. It forced the fielders to play deeper than usual, thereby minimizing the chances for plays at the plate. Throwing one runner out at the plate on a safe hit has been more or less the exception, late in the 1925 race in a game at Detroit I saw two men tagged almost simultaneously at the home plate for a most unusual double play.

Catcher Johnny Bassler of the Tigers has never been noted for his great speed on the bases. He was on third base at the time, Fred Haney, who can step pretty fast, was on second.

A ball was hit to the Boston outfield which it seemed would be caught. Bassler played it safe and

JOHNNY COX TO PLAY WITH TYLER

Righthanded Pitching Star of Paris Gets Job With Trojans Under Jackson

Johnny Cox, star righthander pitcher, who shined in the city league, and who pitched some sterling ball for the Paris club last summer, has recently signed a contract with Tyler, and will report to that city when spring training opens. Cox is a home product, who has a most excellent opportunity to make good. He has the natural qualifications for a winning pitcher and his many Paris friends are counting on him to make a good showing down at the Trojan stronghold.

Cox pitched some excellent games for the local club last summer, when good pitching was necessary to win. Released last spring at the opening of the season he was re-signed later in the summer, and rated among the few winners of that luckless outfit. Perhaps his best game of the year was an 8 to 0 shutout of the Greenville Hunters when that club was in the thickest of the pennant fight. That game, which George Jackson, then manager of the Hunters, but now boss of the Trojans, witnessed and took part in, is probably one of the main reasons why the kid gets another chance in professional company.

All New Catchers

John McGraw is depending on Jack Cummings and Al Devormer with a third catcher, to do the receiving for the Giants this season. All are newcomers to the Giants. Devormer has been up before, but Cummings is a youngster. None of the catchers of last year's team is with McGraw this season.

Failure as Manager, Sisler Seeks Player Prestige

By NEA Service

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., March 11.—George Sisler is himself again. Having thrown off the responsibilities of a big leagued manager, the game's greatest first baseman is a carefree player once more.

Sisler lacked the proper temperament for a manager. It was a first base and give up the management.

Sisler batted only .289 last season and he is nominally a .350 hitter or better. That scant batting average or less than .300 decided Sisler that managing wasn't worth while. He gave up the club at the end of the 1926 race.

"I feel great," said Sisler when queried as to his condition. A pleasing Sisler smile that has been missing for several years accompanied his words. The serious look, almost a frown, that seemed to play over Sisler's face as he talked with you as manager has been wiped away.

"I have had enough of the manager stuff for a time at least," he continued. "I want to regain my playing prestige before I ever give any thought to it again."

"I am in better shape physically than in years. Perhaps that may be accounted for by the fact that I have had nothing to worry me during the winter. The mental strain of getting ready for the opening of the season has been missing."

"My eyes feel as good as ever. I hope to bat at least 50 points better than last season. I realize Dan Howley's tough job as manager and I hope to go big for him."

Pimples, Boils, Skin Eruptions

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S. You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles, which improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight. I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another."

I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.
